DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (If known) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This mid-late 19th century house was built by Gus (Augustus) Hall of "Lothian" (AA-38-0-b). He apparently divided the farm with his brother Fenwick who remained at "Lothian". The C. Russell Morelands began renting the house in 1917 and it was finally offered to them for sale in 1941. Mrs. Moreland was widowed and eventually remarried to Stephen Lengyel. She has kept the house, until recently, as a home for orphans and then as a rest home for the elderly.

It is a large, 2 1/2 story, 3 bay frame structure on a T-plan. The front entrance is in the center bay which projects slightly from the main elevation and extends to a wide gable with a window in its peak. The house has a center hall and stair. The rear wing contains the kitchen with large brick chimney and several smaller rooms. The interior is in nearly original condition, ^{EXCEPT} new floor covers nearly original condition, new floor covers the original in the front rooms. There are several massive pieces of Victorian furniture, made on the Eastern Shore by Joseph Bucey, that have been in the house since 1917. One book case and its contents were brought from "Lothian" when the house was built.

The exterior wood siding has been covered with asbestos^S shingle. There is a semi-hexagonal bay window in the living room and a square one in the dining room.

The name Augustus Hall appears in the location of the house on the 1860 county map.
